Intercultural Dialogues at MSU is a new initiative that works to create community change by building powerful relationships across differences. The first in our series of dialogues is on race.

If you are interested in developing life-long inclusive leadership skills that will enable you to live and work most successfully in our diverse society, we invite you to apply to participate in MSU’s Intercultural Dialogues on Race.

SIGN UP TO PARTICIPATE! ALL STUDENTS WELCOME TO APPLY. Participants must commit to attending eight weekly meetings starting FEBRUARY 2018! Limited space available.

Information: inclusion.msu.edu/education/intercultural-dialogue.html
Apply: tinyurl.com/MSUdialogue

Participating in MSU Dialogues means you will:

- Learn how to dialogue with people who are different than you – rather than debate, argue or disengage;
- Learn about your own identities and the identities of your peers;
- Learn inclusive leadership skills that will help you in a future career;
- Learn how to create positive change in our community and beyond.

Participating and learning about interracial dialogue have impacted me personally, professionally, and socially. I use the tools I have developed in interracial dialogues in my everyday interactions; I have become more aware of my actions and the interconnectedness of identity and human experience.

Elizabeth Beckett

Information Session (optional): November 27, 3pm Mosaic Center, 2nd floor, Union
Application deadline: November 30, 2017
Questions? Donna Rich Kaplowitz: donnak@msu.edu